

Pastors may believe what the Bible says about hell, but when it comes to negativism, that is what they flatly reject. If an individual were to mention sin, some minister might give the excuse that it is not his business but rather God's. If a person asked that same minister about negative preaching, that minister would criticize it outrightly. It is interesting that in subjects like hell, sin, and judgement, New Evangelicals and Emergents would gently place them aside, but when it comes to the question of negativism in the ministry, they would openly speak out against it. The word of God says that a true pastor must have negativism in the church and preaching, otherwise he is not fit for the office. They all emphasize about loving Jesus, but reality shows they are lying, because they blatantly reject what Christ specifically told them to do. This study will cover questions such as, "Why do Christians criticize nice pastors who love people and try to help them?" "Why do Christians condemn human nature when God loves and values us humans so much?" "Why must preachers keep harping on hell, hell, and hell?" "Why do you name-call people when that is not loving?" "Why are Bible-believers so mean compared to nice men like Billy Graham, Joel Osteen, Rick Warren, Bill Hybels, and Robert Schuler?"
